PROFILE

I am an aspiring epidemiologist and anthropologist who is passionate about integrating and analyzing the biological, sociocultural, material, environmental, ecological, legal and spatial dynamics underlining health equity/disparity- and infectious disease-focused research (vector-borne, neglected and respiratory infectious disease). As a Jamaican American, I am deeply invested in conducting research on diseases and health issues dominantly impacting and/or endemic to LMICs and other marginalized communities, especially those in the Caribbean.

I have expertise in field, wet/dry lab, scientific writing, curation, conservation, heritage management and data analysis techniques across the fields of public health, epidemiology (infectious disease, genomic/genetic, wastewater-based, social, spatial, substance use, maternal and child health), anthropology (archaeological, biological, medical, sociocultural), finance, agriculture, food science and data/project management.

I look forward to gaining in leadership, research, laboratory, field, computational and otherwise technical skills to advance planetary health.

EDUCATION

Columbia University Mailman School of Public Health
Setting: New York City, NY, USA | Estimated Graduation: Oct. 2027
Degree: MS in Environmental Health Data Science
Relevant Courses: Biostatistical Methods I, Data Science I, Environmental Health Sciences, Molecular Epidemiology, Principles of Epidemiology

The University of Edinburgh
Setting: Edinburgh, Scotland, UK | Graduated: Jul. 2026
Degree: MSc in Medical Anthropology (Distinction)
Dissertation: Conflicting Contagions: (Re)Emerging Geographies of Risk and Blame at the Confluence of COVID-19 and Dengue Fever Outbreaks in Jamaica, 2020 (Advisor: Lioba Hirsch, PhD)
Relevant Courses: Anthropology of Displacement and Migration; Anthropology of Global Health; Anthropology of Health and Illness; Applied Epidemiology and Public Health (audited); Contagion; Culture and Mental Health in a Global Perspective; Social Determinants of Health and Public Policy

Brown University
Setting: Providence, RI, USA | Graduated: May 2023
Degree: Sc.B. Applied Mathematics-Biology (Track: Biotechnology and Physiology)
Degree: A.B. Anthropology (Track: Biological Anthropology)
Relevant Courses: Anthropology and Global Social Problems: Environment, Development and Governance; Biomaterials; Cell Physiology and Biophysics, Disability and Culture; Equilibrium, Rate, and Structure; Human Evolution; Human Skeleton (vagabonded); Independent Research Project: Bioarchaeology; Inference in Genomics and Molecular Biology; Intermediate Calculus; Introduction to Programming/Computer Science; Introductory Chemistry; Linear Algebra, Methods in Applied Mathematics I + II; Principles of Physiology; Quantitative Models of Biological Systems; Statistical Inference I; Tissue Engineering

Carnegie Mellon University, (incomplete)
Setting: Pittsburgh, PA, USA | Transfer to Brown University: Jun. 2018
Degree: BSc. Mechanical and Biomedical Engineering
Relevant Courses: Differential Integral Calculus; Fundamentals of Mechanical Engineering; Integration and Approximation; Introduction to Biomedical Engineering; Modern Biology; Physics I for Engineering Students
Significant Awards/Honors: Carnegie Mellon University College of Engineering Dean's List

Worcester Polytechnic Institute (WPI) Frontiers Program Session I
Setting: Worcester, MA, USA | Jul. 2016
Relevant Courses: Mathematics scholarship and research
Other Courses: Theatrical scholarship and playwriting

ENVIRONMENTAL/PUBLIC HEALTH AND EPIDEMIOLOGICAL WORK AND RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

Spatial Epidemiology Lab
Role: Research Assistant
Setting: NYC, NY, USA | Oct. 2026 – Present
Principal Investigator: Dr. Dustin Duncan, Dept. of Epidemiology, Columbia University Mailman School of Public Health

- Supporting the development and implementation of TUJUANE, a pilot initiative exploring social capital as a mechanism for strengthening HIV prevention and care among sexual minority men in Nairobi, Kenya.
- Facilitate participant recruitment for The Black Professors Study, examining how workplace conditions and experiences shape academic productivity, sleep, and mental health among faculty of color.

Social Equity Action Lab (SEAL)
Role: Research Fellow
Setting: Remote | Jan. 2026 – Present

- Conducting research to address systemic healthcare problems through legislation and policy making across themes of health equity, care delivery, digital health, mental health, climate and health, caregiver policy, and out-of-hospital care to produce high-quality, publication-ready analyses and commentaries, with an emphasis on rigorous methods, clear policy implications, and collaborative scholarship.
    - Currently supporting research project focused on home-based care and healthcare delivery

Boston Public Health Commission (BPHC)
Role: Health and Racial Equity in Wastewater-based/Environmental Epidemiology Researcher
Setting: Boston, MA, USA | Jul. 2023 – Jun. 2024

- Co-authoring

Madeline Sharp

Date of Birth: April 7, 1998

madeline.t.sharp@gmail.com

    - Equitability in wastewater-based epidemiology implementation articles
    - Presentation on wastewater-based epidemiology as a public health tool in Boston for the Boston Area Research Initiative (BARI)
    - Public health messaging, protocols, technical documentation and policy briefs
- Overseeing Research and Managing Data
    - Comparing seasonal respiratory illness disease surveillance data sources: 4C, MAVEN, NSSP
    - Tracking COVID-19 lineages/variants
    - Creating interactive infectious disease dashboards (COVID-19, RSV, Influenza)
    - Investigating Fetal Infant Mortality Review (FIMR) process in the USA to encourage the development of state-level legislation in Massachusetts
- Conducting Literature Reviews
    - Infectious (zoonotic, respiratory, other), cardiovascular and chronic disease, and diet-, chemical- and substance use-related biomarker monitoring in wastewater to direct the scope of capability within the wastewater program
    - ICD-10 codes and case definitions relevant to overdose to action (OD2A) research and ambulatory care sensitive conditions (ASC)
- Technical Training
    - Grant proposal writing process – IRB approval
    - R and GIS: Data cleaning, data visualization, biostatistical analysis, spatial analysis
- Implementing
    - Wastewater-based epidemiology program (COVID-19, RSV, Influenza)
    - Infectious disease dashboard development

Role: Health and Racial Equity in Wastewater-based/Environmental Epidemiology Intern (Epidemiology focus)
Setting: Boston, MA, USA | Feb. – Jun. 2023

- Developing Public Health Outreach
    - Neighborhood-level wastewater data analysis documentation, training materials and biweekly report generation in R/RStudio
        - Link: https://www.boston.gov/government/cabinets/boston-public-health-commission/boston-wastewater-monitoring
- Coordinating
    - Supporting research on syndromic surveillance strategies
- Technical Training
    - Grant proposal writing process – IRB approval
    - Infectious disease dashboard development
    - R: Data cleaning, data visualization and biostatistical analysis

Role: Health and Racial Equity in Wastewater-based/Environmental Epidemiology Intern ((Bio)medical Anthropology focus)
Setting: Boston, MA, USA | Feb. – Jun. 2023

- Overseeing Research
    - The sociocultural and environmental history of Boston for health and racial equity: Development of Boston's neighborhoods alongside its sewer system as informing population health and public health responses

Madeline Sharp

Date of Birth: April 7, 1998

madeline.t.sharp@gmail.com

- Leading
    - Monthly seminar presentations related to independent research on sociocultural and environmental development of Boston population health, neighborhoods and sewer systems
    - Interviews and internal/external collaborations on the construction of Boston's wastewater monitoring system and sewer construction

Brown University
Role: Undergraduate Teaching Assistant
Setting: Providence, RI, USA | Sept. – Dec. 2022
Class: UNIV 0450: We Live In Interesting Times – The Long Reach of the COVID-19 Pandemic
Professors: Dr. Daniel M. Weinreich, Dept. of Ecology, Evolution and Organismal Biology, Center for Computational Molecular Biology
Dr. Emily F. Oster, Dept. of Economics

- Planning the curriculum (topical student assessments and activities) with professors for new interdisciplinary public health course on the long reach of the COVID-19 pandemic
- Leading weekly discussion sections and managing student queries on the long-reach of the COVID-19 pandemic

ARCHAEOLOGICAL/SOCIAL-SPATIAL WORK AND RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

American Museum of Natural History's Nels Nelson North American Archaeology Lab
Role: Field and Lab Researcher
Setting: New York City, NY, USA | Sept. – Dec.2023
Curator: Dr. David Hurst Thomas
Lab Director and Crew Chief: Dr. Anna Semon

- Conducting environmental archaeology field and lab work incorporating archaeobotanical, zooarchaeological and geoarchaeological analytic techniques
    - Fieldwork – excavation, probing, soil analysis, compass usage, shoreline surveys, remote sensing, and archaeobotanical processing at late archaic shell ring on St. Catherines Island, Georgia, USA
    - Laboratory Analysis – fine fraction sorting, artifact photography (projectile points, 3D modeling), artifact processing (washing, cataloguing), artifact analysis (faunal remains, lithics, Native American and European ceramics, Spanish colonial artifacts), ensuring lab maintenance and safety
    - Data and Reference Management – using Microsoft Office Suite, especially Excel and Access
    - North American Artifact Collection Inventory – curation

Institute for Field Research (IFR) Caribbean: Providence Island Heritage Archaeology
Role: Student Researcher in Anthropological Archaeology and Ethnography
Setting: Old Providence Island, Colombia | Jun. – Jul. 2023
Principal Investigator: Dr. Tracie Mayfield, Dept. of Anthropology, Archaeology Research Center, University of Southern California
